We Learn About One Another’s

DIFFERENCES & COMMONALITIES

When was the last time you talked with someone about their culture, race, gender, sexual orientation, religion or another factor?

These types of open, respectful conversations can be so insightful and educational!

You may discover that you and the other person are different from one another – and can learn from one another’s differences.

You may also discover that you have things in common.

You’ll never know if you just stick to topics like the weather!

You’ll never know if you just stick to topics like the weather!